LOUGHER HEARD FROM AT BATON ROUGE, LA.

F. H. Lougher, formerly of the planters' experiment station here, is now attending the Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge. In an interesting letter he tells of his new surroundings and the changes in the climate there. Of the thermometer at 110 in the shade and again of blizzards that make it hard to get from his rooms to the university buildings.

There are other kamaianas at the same university and he says in part, "I have met the boys from Hawaii here. Mr. Thurston's son, Conant's son and David Mann, formerly of Ewa. Mann is through with his course and Conant is going to Porto Rico as assistant chemist, on the plantation where Mr. McLean, formerly of Kauai, is manager."

Speaking of plantation methods and how they do things back there, he says, "The Hawaiian planters will have to keep pegging, otherwise they will get left if they do not employ men who have the latest lunch in the sugar business. I have been down through the plantations here and I find they are ahead in no small item on a plantation and a small saving means quite a lot. In Hawaii there is lots of room for it."

M. Lougher expects to complete a two years' course in the university, during which he will doubtless add to an already good experience in sugar growing. During vacation times he travels through other States and gets pointers on all kinds of farming. He is evidently well and happy and sends his heartiest aloha to all his friends.

NO DANGER BUOYS

YET AT WAIKIKI

Nothing has yet been done with regard to replacing the danger buoys to mark the holes in the coral off Waikiki. Nobody seems to admit any responsibility for this and therefore, of course, nobody is doing anything about it.

It would be a matter of small expense to anchor two small can buoys, each with a big danger sign on them, but until somebody comes forward to undertake that small expense, the holes will remain a death-trap for the unwary and unpractised bather.

Luckily the holes are not in a part much frequented by swimmers, especially those who do not swim well. But, since surfing has become such a widely enjoyed sport, there are hundreds of malihinis who pass along the shore, sometimes hoisting their boards, then when they soon tire of this, getting off and pushing them.

There is quite a strong eddy round the holes and anybody who is not a strong swimmer and gets caught, has only a slight chance of coming out alive. The Hustace boys have saved dozens of lives there and there has been at least one recent fatality to mark the spot.

If that part of the coast is under the jurisdiction of the supervisors, or even if it is not, it would not take a huge appropriation to have the buoys placed in position.

J. H. Hertsche, manager of the Moana and Young hotels, when seen yesterday seemed to know little about the buoys. He stated that patrons of his bathhouse invariably enter the water on the Ewa side of the wharf, that leads out from the Moana hotel grounds, and that the bathing is perfectly safe between there and the malihini surf. He did not know whose business it is to put in the buoys but was quite certain that it was not his.

W. C. Bergin, proprietor of the Waikiki Inn, who wrote to The Advertiser some time ago, objecting to the inference that the holes were in front of his place, while not admitting any direct responsibility, is anxious on the subject and states that, if nobody else does something pretty soon, he will get busy.

Mr. Bergin also stated that he thought the danger was greatly over-rated. He says that a swimmer can always get out of the holes with a few strokes and that it is only those who are unable to swim who get caught. He believes that the recent fatality was more due to cramps than anything else.

There is a possibility of a conference between Messrs. Hertsche and Bergin and they may decide to put in the buoys. In the mean time the latter states that he will jog the supervisors on the subject and see if they cannot be persuaded to do something.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

It is asserted in Lisbon that King Emmanuel will marry in April. The name of the bride-elect is not given but rumor indicates that it will be an English alliance.

Charles A. Chambers, a rancher of Phoenix, Arizona, was electrocuted by a current on the wires of a transmission line, between Roosevelt Dam and the City of Phoenix.

Rev. Jonah W. Lupton, a widely known Presbyterian minister, and father of Stewart Lupton, the American vice consul at Messina, died at Winchester, West Virginia.

The report that the Duchess of Chaulnes, formerly Miss Theodora Shouts, will marry Prince Joachim Murat, has been denied by the Duchess herself, on her arrival in New York.

The right to drink as much wine and beer as a man wants was declared an attribute of human liberty by Doctor C. J. Hexamer, president of the German Alliance at the opening of the Alliance convention in Cincinnati. Lieutenant-General Misteheko, former Governor of Tiflis, has applied to the Emperor for a pardon for a private soldier who was sentenced to death for an attempt to kill the general during the maneuvers in Turkestan last year.
